Year Changes Hobby To Money for Galion Youth

BEAM AT HIS WORK BENCH

Richard Beam, Filling Station Worker Year Ago Today, Makes Glass Sculpture into $50,000 Industry.

Special to The Star

GALION, April 23 — Tuesday, April 23, should be marked in big red letters on the calendar of Richard Beam, 23, Galion resident, because it marks the first anniversary of his rise from a $14-a-week gasoline station attendant to a sculpturer in glass whose art has developed into a $50,000 a year business.

Beam's rise, which a generation ago might have been the subject for an Horatio Alger book, is fast bringing him national recognition.

Just a year ago today a chance meeting with a motorist at his gasoline station here turned Beam on the road to success and transformed into big business an art which he had practiced as a hobby for a number of years.

The stranger who has played such an important part in Beam's success is Frederick Thaler of Pittsburgh, Pa. He was first attracted to Beam when he stopped at the Galion man's filling station for gasoline a year ago today and saw some of the "trinkets" Beam had been giving away to his friends.

Learned Old Process

A year ago Beam had no market for his products which are made from molten glass by netting it, a fascinating process which is not an American art, but one which Beam learned as a child from an old Frenchman.

Today, Beam is vice president of the Valerie Halle Crystals, Inc., a business which will amount to more than $50,000 at the close of the first year on April 24. The new industry provides a training school for a number of young people who would like to learn a trade at which they later can become employed.

"If it hadn't been for the chance meeting with Mr. Thaler I might still be selling gasoline and staying awake nights figuring out a way to make ends meet," Beam said in an interview.

Having no idea of their value, Beam was giving away a little over a year ago his beautiful crystal glass ships, vases, birds, baskets and other items that he fashions out of molten glass.

Nine Salesmen Employed

Now salesmen are placing them in the nation's most exclusive gift shops of the largest cities in the country.

Thaler, when he stopped at Beam's gas station last April had to be shown that Beam actually made the items with his own hands.

Next day Thaler took the pieces to one of the finest gift shops in Pittsburgh and convinced the skeptical manager that they had been made in Ohio. Thaler admits he almost dropped dead when the manager asked for 1,600 pieces of this work within a few days.

Immediately Thaler called his partner, Emil Wauschauer in New York City, and together with Beam, the three formed a company. Wauschauer is president, Beam is vice president, and Thaler is secretary-treasurer. The company was named after Thaler's little girl, "Valerie Halle" Thaler.

Thaler has moved from Pittsburgh to live in Mansfield and is sales manager besides secretary-treasurer. Nine salesmen are representing the new industry in the larger cities of the United States.

Six feet tall with dark hair that curls tightly, brown eyes and pink cheeks, Beam has a pleasing personality. He has time to tell about his work, and is only thankful that he is able to realize some financial gain from his art.

Born in Mansfield

He was born in Mansfield, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beam, when his father was a salesman for a sewing machine company.

When he was six years old, Richard Beam accompanied his grandfather to collect rent from an old Frenchman in Mansfield. They had to go to the basement of the building to see the renter

TWO WHO FLED JAIL AT MT. GILEAD HELD

Escaped Prisoners Recaptured in Mt. Vernon and W. Va.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 23—Clyde Kelly, 18, and Richard Roop, 18, who escaped from the Morrow county jail Sunday night at 8:30 p. m. were picked up at widely separated points by state highway patrolmen late Monday.

Kelly, who was held here to answer charges of check forgery and automobile theft was arrested in West Virginia by state highway police. He was driving a new car stolen Sunday night from Harold Denton, Cardington automobile dealer. The car was parked in front of the Denton garage.

Details of the arrest had not been received by Sheriff Oscar George late Monday afternoon.

Roop was arrested at Mt. Vernon. He had also stolen a car after leaving Kelly when they escaped.

Roop may be held in Mt. Vernon on the automobile theft charge. Kelly, if returned here will be arraigned in the common peas court and if not returned here will be arraigned in federal court since he drove the stolen automobile across a state line.

The two youths escaped when Roop was permitted to clean up the sheriff's office without supervision. He opened the cell block in which Kelly was confined and they made their way out through a basement window. Their absence was not discovered until 9:30 p. m. Sunday, an hour after they escaped.

WRECK PROBERS FAIL TO DETERMINE CAUSE

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., April 23 — Cause of the Little Falls, N. Y., wreck which killed 30 persons and injured 100 remains a mystery today after indefinite adjournment of an investigation producing testimony the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited was in "perfect condition" before the accident.

The interstate commerce commission, New York state public service commission and the railroad recessed the inquiry while rail workers cleared up the remainder of the wreckage after removal of the last two of nine derailed cars. Condition of some 40 victims still in Little Falls and Herkimer, N. Y., hospitals was reported unchanged.

Mayor Says Street Work Plan Rejected by County

Commissioners Refuse Method Used Elsewhere, Council Told.

Efforts of the city to obtain aid from the county in sponsoring a WPA project for improvement of South Prospect street have been blocked by the commissioners, Mayor Snare told city council last night at its regular session in city hall.

The mayor said he had been under the impression negotiations were progressing satisfactorily in all respects until yesterday when the commissioners notified him they could not go along on such a project.

The project would be financed with state auto tag revenue, most of which belongs to the county itself. The mayor said there is about $28,000 available in the auto tag fund of which about $22,000 or $23,000 is the county's and $5,000 or $6,000 the city's. The mayor said that in several other counties the cities and counties are working together on city street projects, using such funds.

The mayor said that under such an arrangement where the funds are used on streets or roads they do not have to be repaid, since they are used for the purpose for which they are intended.

Alternative Plan

An alternative, the mayor said, is for council to ask the commissioners for the funds for use in direct relief. The law provides in this case that the funds shall be paid back out of the county general fund, but city officials feel that some way or another the repayment would have to be made by the city.

Other matters before council:

Mayor Snare urged citizens to support both the one-mill fire department levy and the one and a half-mill relief levy at the May 14 primaries.

Council passed an ordinance extending water mains and another making Jefferson street a stop street at Mark and George.

The discussion on the apparent falling through of the proposed city-county project came at an informal session in the mayor's office before the regular council meeting.

The mayor opened by stating that the auto tag funds are available for relief. He explained that if the city requests them from the county for relief purposes they must be paid back into the road fund by May 31, 1941. He said that indirectly the repayment probably would come from the city.

Says Plan Used Elsewhere

"We have been trying to work out a plan whereby the funds would not have to be repaid," he said. "It is being done in Franklin county and in Newark and elsewhere."

He explained that under the plan city council gives the county the power to improve a street, to take over its maintenance for the time being. The auto tag money, which is ear-marked for street and road improvements, would thus be used as intended and would also help solve the relief problem.

A project to improve Prospect street had been under consideration. It would have involved repaving with brick from Columbia street to Mill street and resurfacing from Bellefontaine to Columbia. The mayor said this project probably would not require all the auto tag money available.

"Everything had been going along successfully," Mayor Snare. "The county commissioners agreed to go along if council would give them permission."

Says Refusal Given Yesterday

Yesterday, the commissioners' clerk called the mayor over and the commissioners informed the mayor they "were unable to go along because they feared they would get too much criticism from the county," the mayor reported.

"I asked them if the city wasn't still a part of the county but they insisted they couldn't go along," he added.

The commissioners told the mayor that if they diverted their auto tag funds to the Prospect street project, the funds would be exhausted by July 1.

"It could have helped solve the relief problem and secure an improvement of benefit to the county as well as the city," the mayor said.

WPA officials had been willing to sponsor such a project, the work being of a somewhat higher type than most WPA projects here in the past, he said.

The city would have furnished all engineering and supervision, all plans, and all the county had to do was to sponsor the project under its name and to take credit for it as a county project, the mayor said.

Commissioner Shepard asked if it didn't mean that "we are kicked

ACCUSE LABOR HEAD

Accused of extorting about $100,000 in the last three years from 20 New York hotels and cleaning contractors, George Scalise, international president of the Building Service Employes International union, an A. F. L. affiliate, is shown after he was arraigned and released on $40,000 bail. Scalise termed the arrest and accusation was a "culmination of a vicious vitriolic attack which is anti-labor in its essence and foundation."

CENSUS WORK NEARS COMPLETION IN CITY

Survey of Vacant Dwellings Remains, Office Reports.

Taking of the census in Marion is nearing completion, except for the survey of vacant dwellings, officials at the district headquarters here reported today.

Throughout the district, which includes Marion, Morrow, Wyandot, Crawford, Hardin and Union counties, the work is approximately two-thirds completed.

Majority of the enumerators in Marion have completed the population and housing phases of the nose-count. They still must make survey of vacant dwellings, schedules for which have not yet arrived here.

The enumerators, although they have finished the greater portion of their work, will retain their books until they receive schedules for the tabulation of vacant dwellings. The schedules are expected here shortly.

In many sections of the county the agricultural enumeration is virtually complete, officials reported.

ENGLAND'S WAR BUDGET DRAWN; NEW TAXES SET

Simon Asks Over Nine Billion; Urges Public To Accept for Victory's Sake.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 23 — Britain's chancellor of the exchequerer, Sir John Simon, today announced a new war budget of £2,667,000,000 ($9,334,500,000) for 1940-41 and imposed a host of new levies which he asked the public to accept "for the sake of victory."

From new sources, the chancellor said, he hoped to boost revenue by £101,000,000 to a total of £1,234,000,000, leaving a £1,433,000,000 deficit to be found by borrowing.

(The British pound currently is worth about $3.50.)

The proposed new "purchase" levy would be applied on sales from wholesalers to retailers and fitted by the government into a plan for "transforming our whole economy," Sir John said.

He explained the revolutionary tax would be applied at rates yet to be determined and would "reduce the demand for supplies and conserve manpower."

He asked the nation to accept the burden "for the sake of victory."

Calling his report "heartening," he said nevertheless that Britain's war expenditures for the first seven months of conflict—down to the end of the 1939-40 fiscal year, March 31—amounted to about $3,167,000,000.

To strike a balance for the 1939-40 year, he said the government had had to borrow about $2,698,000,000.

He said the rate of spending on the war was about £1,500,000,000 a year, but was increasing.

The chancellor announced tax increases on beer, tobacco, postage, telephone charges and whisky.

He estimated that by next March 31, Britain's expenditure for war purposes alone would be £2,000,000,000 a year.

Sir John said that of a £500,000,000 vote of credit given early in the war £91,500,000 had not been spent.

Sir John cheerfully said that Britain's first year at war cost less than was expected and that income exceeded estimates as a result of large yields from tax boosts authorized by his September budget, just after the war began.

He added that Britain's national debt had increased to £8,931,000,000 on March 31.

SENATE GROUP CUTS HOUSE APPROPRIATION

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 23—The senate appropriations committee made another economy effort today by cutting $23,585,030 from the house-approved $1,021,639,700 appropriation for the labor department and the federal security administration.

The biggest reduction $25,000,000—was made in the $280,000,000 house allocation for the civilian conservation corps. That and other cuts were offset in part by increases.

Changes included a $1,045,000 addition to the $5,105,000 house allotment for the wage-hour administration.

Despite the reduction under the house appropriation, the senate committee total of $998,054,670 was $32,066,028 over President Roosevelt's budget estimates and $24,746,800 over the appropriation last year.

Miss Louise Cunningham Gets Citizenship Award

Former School Teacher First To Receive Women's Award.

The honor of being named Marion's first woman citizen was accorded Miss Louise Cunningham of 707 Mt. Vernon avenue at the Americanism program of the auxiliary to Marion Post No. 3313, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night, for her outstanding service to the community.

A teacher in the public schools in Marion for 48 years, active in the church, patriotic, literary and civic life of the community, Miss Cunningham, in winning this signal honor, was practically the unanimous choice of the participating organizations and was the unanimous choice of the judges, Attorney George Geran, Attorney Paul Jones and Capt. H. L. Taylor of Co. D, 166th Infantry, Ohio National guard.

First Event of Kind Here

The naming of Miss Cunningham as the outstanding woman citizen last night marked the first time in the city's history such an honor has been conferred. It also marked the first time the conferring of the honor has been a part of the local and national observance of Americanism week which was launched yesterday.

Following the announcement of the judge's decision by Mr. Jones, Captain Taylor read the qualifications which prompted the unanimous choice. These included her promotion of good citizenship by presenting patriotic booklets and American flags to aliens upon their becoming naturalized, her service as a teacher in the public schools, her active and valuable work as a member of the jury commission, library and Red Cross boards, her work in the Daughters of the American Revolution, her unceasing efforts in the movement to restore the old Quarry Street cemetery, and other civic, patriotic and literary activities.

In accepting the honor, Miss Cunningham said she never dreamed the choice would fall to her. "Nothing finer can be said of a man or woman than that he or she is a good citizen," she said. The meeting, she said, had

R. A. Garvin To Retire as Head of Junior High

R. A. Garvin of 868 Summit street, who is completing his sixteenth year as principal of Vernon Heights Junior High school and his forty-sixth year in public schools of Marion and Crawford counties, today made known that he will retire at the end of this school year.

Mr. Garvin's career covers a period ranging from teacher in a one-room school in Likens township, Crawford county, to his present post on head of a junior high school.

Mr. Garvin said he has no plans for his time after June 7, when city schools close for vacation, other than that he and Mrs. Garvin are going to enjoy themselves.

Mr. Garvin became principal of Vernon Heights school in 1924, succeeding the late Mrs. Daisy Harding Lewis, sister of President Harding.

For four years prior to his advancement to a principalship, he taught mathematics at Harding High school.

Came Here In 1920

Mr. Garvin came to the Marion public school system in 1920 from Crawford county where, from 1912 to 1920, he was principal of the Bucyrus High school.

His teaching career began in 1894 when he was hired as teacher for the Likens township school in Crawford county, a one-room school. In 1902 he entered the Bucyrus city school system as principal of a grade school and that same year went into the Bucyrus high school as assistant principal. He was made principal in 1912. From 1902 to 1908 he was a Crawford county teachers' examiner.

In 1897, Mr. Garvin and Miss Anna Barney, also a teacher in the Crawford county schools, were married.

They have four daughters, Mrs. Mary Kester of 508 South Prospect street, Mrs. Margaret Hayes of Selfridge Field, Mich., and Mrs. Fairy Gregory and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell of Columbus. Mrs. Gregory this year is worthy grand associate matron of the Order of Eastern Star and her father is worthy patron of Lenna Chapter No. 88 of Marion.

Active in Education Group

Mr. Garvin is a member of the Ohio Education association, the state principals' organization and the district and county associations. He is a member of First Presbyterian church, a former superintendent of the Sunday school and a member of the Men of the church.

C. of C. Committees Helping To Save Taxpayers' Money, Speaker Declares

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 23—George B. Chandler, executive vice president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, declared today Chamber-sponsored local committees are showing "constructive results" in saving taxpayers' money.

The taxation and public expenditures committees are established in 32 of Ohio's 88 counties, he said in an address drafted for a business men's luncheon.

Chandler declared surveys showed "exorbitant prices" were being paid in numerous county operating functions, including:

That mileage allowances on private cars used in public business ranged as high as 20 cents a mile, one official traveling 46,000 miles a year at that rate.

That county jail meals run as high as 75 cents a meal, while most counties the cost should not exceed 24 or 25 cents.

That prices paid for supplies [illegible] although cement can be purchased for $1.92 to $2.13 in any county;

That gasoline, prices ranging from 11 to 19 cents per gallon net, can be purchased in 500 to 500-gallon quantities at 11¼ to 11½ cents per gallon in any county;

That oak bridge lumber bought at prices ranging as high as $67.90 per thousand feet can be purchased from $28 to $31 per thousand; and

That institutional blend coffee bought at a cost ranging to 30½ cents per pound can be purchased for 11½ cents.

Many of these situations have been corrected through [illegible] local officials, Chandler stated.

M. L. ANNENBERG PLEADS GUILTY

Wealthy Publisher Admits Evasion of Over Million in Income Taxes.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 23—M. L. Annenberg, defendant in the largest criminal federal income tax case in history, pleaded guilty today to evading $1,217,208.73 of income taxes for the year 1936.

The plea by the wealthy Philadelphia publisher and former head of an international racing news empire was entered to the fifth count of an indictment accusing him of evading $3,268,809.07 in taxes for the years 1932 to 1936, inclusive.

Fifty per cent penalties and 6 per cent interest would bring to $5,548,384.80 the aggregate which the federal government claimed against him.

A plea of guilty to the fifth count also was entered by Joseph Hufner, alias Samuel Goldfarb, a business associate of Annenberg, who with 11 others was accused of aiding and abetting the publisher in the alleged evasion.

William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, informed Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson before a courtroom packed with defendants, attorneys and curious that the attorney general had directed him to advise the court that at the time of sentencing Annenberg and Haffner, the government intended to dismiss all other counts of the indictment and other income tax indictments against them.

"The government," Campbell continued, "has not agreed to make any recommendation as to the sentence to be imposed on the foregoing pleas of guilty."

INDEPENDENT GROUP TO SUPPORT BURTON

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 23 — Protesting against what they termed the "arrogance" of Ed Schorr, chairman of the state Republican executive committee, a group of independent Republicans disclosed today they would work for the nomination of Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland for U. S. senator.

Invitations to an organization meeting to be held Wednesday were sent out over the names of Murray Seasongood and Russell Wilson, both former mayors; Edgar Friedlander, Victory Heintz, Sanford Headley and Walter S. Schmidt.

All were stalwarts of the charter movement during its early years.

Schorr, speaking at a Republican rally here last week, declared he could not support Burton because the Cleveland mayor admittedly was independent, rather than an organization Republican, and because he held Burton had embarrassed Gov. Bricker and the party by exaggerating relief conditions in Cleveland.

Instead, Schorr threw his support to U. S. Rep. Dudley A. White of Norwalk.

SELECT ISSUES RECORD GAINS

Specialties Occupy Buying Spotlight; Most Leaders Advance Slightly.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 23—Specialties again occupied the buying spotlight in today's stock market. Most leaders were up a shade, but those experienced difficulty in holding gains.

War, business and politics formed the principal subjects of discussion in Wall Street. While the industrial picture lacked clarity, there were numerous favorable earnings statements and optimistic predictions for an upturn in the next few months.

Selecting progress was observed in the bond department. Commodities and foreign securities markets were a trifle uneven.

Supported at one time or another—some eventually slipped—were N. Y. Shipbuilding, Allied Mills, International Paper preferred, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont and Union Carbide.

RAIN, BIG RECEIPTS HOLD MARKET DOWN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 23 — Except for a brief fractional rise, wheat futures were moderately lower most of the time today, reflecting rain in the domestic grain belt and continued heavy receipts in the northwest.

May contracts, which led the decline, fell to $1.10½, off 1½ cents at the most, while July, representing the new crop, sagged to $1.08⅜, off a cent. Rallies from these lows were frequent, however.

Arrivals of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth totaled 832 cars against 687 a week ago and 339 a year ago. Despite this price dips at Minneapolis were small and at times the market was higher.

Wheat on the board of trade closed ⅛ up to ⅜ lower, May $1.11-1.11⅛, July $1.09⅛-⅛; corn ½-⅝ lower, May 64¾-⅞, July 62⅛-⅜; oats unchanged to ¼ down.

OHIOAN SURRENDERS IN DEATH OF WIFE

By The Associated Press

SANDUSKY, O., April 23—One of three revolver bullets fired through a window killed Mrs. Phillip Mischler, 38, in her living room today and 15 minutes later her white-haired husband surrendered at the office of Sheriff William F. Souter.

"Mischler rode his bicycle to my office and asked me to lock him up for safekeeping," said Souter. "He didn't tell me why."

The sheriff said Mischler, under questioning, related he was under a doctor's care. Calling the doctor, Souter learned of the shooting.

Police Capt. Thomas Ryan said the couple's daughter, Mrs. Estelle Lublow, was in the room with her mother and named her father as the slayer.

The slightly-built Mischler, a millright, stood on the front porch and opened fire on his wife with a .32 caliber revolver, Ryan said. The couple had separated about two weeks ago.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, April 24

THIS should be a day of brilliant performance, with the spirit of initiative and enterprise under high mental stimulation for much progress to occur. This may operate in the field of promotion and advertising, publishing, leading to highly-creative literary output. Co-operation with groups of a social, humanitarian, educational or political nature, where propaganda or the moulding of public opinion is involved, may enjoy surprising success. But be careful with funds and ready for trivial disappointments or setbacks, perhaps due to neglect.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid accomplishment, especially in fields where excellent creative ability or shrewd talents in writing, publicity, promotion or commercial enterprises demanding agility and originality are expressed. Work with groups of a humanitarian, social, educational or political character should prove successful if matters are ably handled and there are no misunderstandings due to unstable dependence.

A child born on this day may be creatively brilliant and a profound thinker although possibly high strung and volatile.

P.-T. A. TO COOPERATE WITH BICYCLE CLUB

Plans were completed for cooperating in the bicycle club sponsored by the Safety committee of the City Council, P.-T. A. at a meeting of the Forest Lawn P.-T. A. last night. O. J. Swonger was named chairman to represent the unit.

A program included a group of songs by the fourth grade taught by Miss Marie Johnson. The guest speaker was M. J. Dotter of the state health department.

Mr. Dotter, who is chief milk sanitarian, told of a survey made in 1935 of the milk supply of Marion. He said that as a result of the survey and a comparison with the report of the White House conference of 1928 on public health and the recommendations of the annual conference of state and provincial health officers, the state department of health recommended and still is recommending to the board of health of Marion that the so-called "standard ordinance" be adopted.

He summarized the experience of the operations of the ordinance for the last five years in 29 health districts serving 121 incorporated communities, and its effect on the milk industry.

The fourth grade was awarded the traveling picture for having the largest number of parents present and also won honors for having the largest number of fathers in the audience.

The first grade room mothers, with Mrs. Miriam Cheney, social chairman, were in charge of the social hour. Officers will be installed and a children's program given May 17.

Hitler Believed Anxious To End War Inside Year

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The speed which the battle of Norway has developed—demonstrating that the earlier slow-motion war in reality had been geared for fast action—gives rise to the natural query as to how long the general conflict must run to bring peace.

Nazidom has given us a fair indication of the likely answer.

The blunt disclosure by Nazi Minister of Economics Walther Funk of the ruthless way in which Germany is drawing on her reserves, coupled with word from Berlin that the Nazi regime is determined to make good Herr Hitler's promise to force a decision in the war this year, strikes me as highly significant.

I think we can take it for granted that it was no idle gesture when the Nazi chieftain made when he set this year for the windup.

There are now so many reasons why the Nazi leader shouldn't try to beat the Allies at their own game of economic-strangulation in a war of attrition that it would be folly for him not to strive for an early termination of the conflict.

Actually the way things have turned out it undoubtedly would have been far better for Nazidom had Herr Hitler taken advantage of his own military preparedness and Allied weakness at the outbreak of the war last September and struck at them with all his might.

The reason Hitler held his hand so long undoubtedly was because he hoped to get peace without further fighting. However, his occupation of Denmark and assault on Norway made it quite clear that he had abandoned that idea at last.

He now knows that the only road to peace is to defeat the Allies or to abandon the fight. There is small chance of peace by negotiation.

The fuehrer's huge gamble on Denmark and Norway also indicated, to my mind, that he was getting worried about the undoubted pressure which the Allied blockade is putting on Germany. That blockade is working, and it is getting tighter every day.

Things have gone wrong. The Allies have raided the Balkans and diverted a lot of products Hitler badly needed. Communications have failed over wide areas during the winter. There has been a shortage of Rumania's all essential oil. Russia is said to have produced little.

All in all, this looks like the appointed time for Hitler to lash out at the Allies.

And if the end of this year doesn't actually see the finish of the war, yet it is not at all unlikely that by then it will be to all intents decided, but with the beaten side hanging on in hope of a reprieve.

Miss Schneider will direct the Silver Street choir in singing "Bend to the Oar," a Czech folk tune, "The River," by McCollin, and "Carmen, Carmela," a Mexican folk song.

Other Mark Street numbers, directed by Misses Philomen Gregg and Lois Hall, will be a trombone duet, "Lullaby" by Brahms, by Dale Robinson and Dick Wooley, and "Finlandia," by Sibelius and "Marines' March," by Phillips, sung by the fifth and sixth grade ensemble.

Bucyrus Officer, Crack Shot, Never Used Gun on Duty

Several years ago when he became a state highway patrolman, a former Bucyrus resident set out to become an expert marksman because he believed his job required it. As a result he has piled up an unusual record as a crack shot without ever using his gun on his job.

The officer is Srgt. James C. Ulmer, 34, who on May 1 will become head of the enforcement section of the state conservation division with 112 game protectors working under him.

In 1933 Srgt. Ulmer, a graduate of Bucyrus High school, was appointed to the patrol. He knew nothing about firearms but immediately began studying and practicing because he knew this weakness might prove disastrous while coping with fleeing bandits or automobile thieves.

After attending shoots at Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana, at Trenton, N. J., and in Philadelphia, he entered the Ohio Brotherhood of Police Officers' shoot in 1936 and surprised veteran marksmen by shooting his way to first prize. Then he became a member of the Cincinnati Pistol League and the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association, captain of the highway patrol pistol team and head of the highway patrol's training school.

But with all his practicing and experience, Srgt. Ulmer explained during an interview in Columbus recently he's never had to use a gun in line of duty. And that's why he took up pistol shooting in the first place.

BIOLOGY INSTRUCTOR BEFORE LIONS CLUB

Bain Illustrates Talk with New Type Projector.

An illustrated talk on microscopic animals by Thomas [illegible] Bain biology instructor at Harding High school, was a feature at a luncheon meeting of the Marion Lions club at Hotel Harding yesterday.

Using a micro-projector which he recently developed for showing animals on a large screen, Mr. Bain explained the life and habits of small animals, some of them so small they could scarcely be seen by the naked eye.

So powerful was the projection equipment that minute parts could be seen clearly, the stinger of a mosquito being enlarged to the feet and legs of flies and wings of bees assuming giant proportions.

Many of the little animals included in his talk on "Microscopic Fairyland" were obtained from stagnant water in McKinley lake and were shown while still alive. So greatly enlarged were some of these specimens that the audience could see how their various organs function.

Guests at the meeting included Paul Smith of Akron, William Taylor of Dayton and Steward Jones, Mark Pinkerman, Roger LaMarche, Kenneth A. Robinson, Terley Vance and J. C. Woods, all of Marion.

FRANK BROS

PORTRAIT OF A HAPPY FAMILY

They've just made a big decision—a happy one in what it meant to them in pleasure and comfort and thrift—and they made it carefully and sensibly.

They bought a new car—a new 1940 Plymouth.

They considered "All 3" low-priced cars. They found, at the Plymouth salesroom in chart form, a clear picture of what each low-priced car offers.

They saw that of 22 features in high-priced cars, Plymouth offered them 21, compared to 11 and 8 for the "other two" low-priced cars.

And they discovered Plymouth's Lower Price was just as revealing—just as conclusive.

PLYMOUTH

TRIP PLANNED BY PRESIDENT

21-Day Cross Country Swing Announced by White House for June.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 23—Primary election voting in Pennsylvania, with interest centering on the efforts of Sen. Joseph Guffey to win Democratic nomination, was accompanied today by these developments on the national political scene:

1. President Roosevelt disclosed plans for what the White House called a "non-political" 21-day trip across the country in June, at a time when the Republican convention will be in session.

2. Senator Downey (D-Calif.) joined anti-third term ranks in the midst of a California primary fight among delegates' slates supporting Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Garner.

3. Senator Norris (Ind-Neb.), a third term advocate, told reporters that he was "afraid" the President would not run again. "I think he would like to retire and get a rest," Norris said.

4. Republican Chairman John Hamilton proposed that members of the party's platform committee meet well in advance of the June 24 convention to begin their complicated task.

Today's Pennsylvania balloting held no special significance from a national standpoint, although convention delegates were being chosen by both Democrats and Republicans. President Roosevelt was unopposed in the Democratic preference primary, which does not bind the delegation. The Republican ballot bore the name of no presidential aspirant.

Guffey was opposed for renomination by Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man. Both are New Dealers. David Lawrence, Democratic state chairman, and several of his aids are backing Jones.

In the Republican senatorial primary, Jay Cooke of Philadelphia, the state organization's choice, was running against Albert B. Ladner, Philadelphia attorney, and John A. Derenzo, Altoona newspaper publisher.

President Roosevelt's cross-country tour, announced late yesterday at Warm Springs, Ga., tentatively will include speeches in North Carolina, Mississippi, California, and Washington state. Mr. Roosevelt said with a smile that they would be limited largely to conservation.

Downey wrote Democratic Chairman Farley that his opposition to another Roosevelt nomination was based on his belief that "no president should be elected a third time."

Downey, long an advocate of the Townsend pension program, has criticized various New Deal policies—especially regarding social security.

To the Republican Voters of Marion County

Please permit me to present my background of experience which, I believe, qualifies me for your consideration and support as a candidate for County Engineer.

I was your County Engineer from 1919 to 1923, and I believe we did more State and County Road, Bridge and Drainage Construction work than during any other period in the history of our county. I invite you to check my record for efficiency and economy in handling that work. I now feel better qualified for this job because of my contact and experience with Engineering and Construction problems in other Counties, States and the Federal government.

With this experience I am ready to immediately do my part in cooperating with other officials and agencies in meeting any problems presented.

ABOUT ANYTHING

In and Around Marion

No Career Worries

Pick up some items for the "kolyum," says the city editor. That being his way of referring to the occasionally appearing feature titled, "About Anything, In and Around Marion."

So we've been stalking items. The first mushroomed up right in our own backyard, so to speak.

Our landlady, Mrs. Alice Boyd, told us this one. It's about her young niece, 10-year-old Patricia Ackerman of 519 East Church street.

Patricia was playing the piano for a visitor at her house. The guest commented, "Some day you're going to be a concert pianist." To which our young heroine replied, "Well, really, I haven't thought about my career yet."

Indian Winter

At the courthouse they attribute to Elmer Ullom, county dog warden, the remark that chilly April weather is "Indian winter." Spring hasn't arrived they maintain, until Warden Ullom appears with his pet bulldog in tow. The dog, "Pal," will sport a new outfit when he makes his spring debut. He's the owner of a new harness, the kind that fits around his neck, legs and body. And it has fancy leather spangles.

Schemes

Noteworthy are the many ways devised to avoid the toll charges of long distance telephone calls. The schemes are nothing as crude as using a lead nickel in the coin slot. They sound workable but we've never quite had the nerve to try them.

One such was worked out by a young Marionite who several years ago went on a trip. He evolved it to keep worried parents informed of his well-being and whereabouts. Each night at the city where he stopped he placed a call. He would make it a personal message to a member of the family. That party was always reported absent and consequently the parents knew each night where their son was and that he was all right.

Topping that, although the phone company officials say it won't work anymore, is one we read about. A New Yorker visited on the west coast. He made a pre-arrangement to converse weekly with his wife. She went to pay telephones and he, knowing the number where she would be, placed collect calls from a pay booth at the opposite end. They gossiped at the phone company's expense.

"Tracking" Criminals

Something we never knew before today was how detectives make reproductions of foot prints or tire tracks. Deputy Sheriff W. H. Willis told us. He took a course for law enforcement officers at Ashland college.

When officers find a print near the scene of a crime they go into action with plaster of Paris. You might think like we did that they just mix the plaster with water and pour it into the print. But it isn't as simple as that.

They pour in just enough to cover the bottom of the print. Then they put small twigs and little pieces of wood at odd angles on the plaster. Pouring more of the plaster on top they continue re-inforcing it. Just like contractors make big bridges or cement roads.

It takes about a half-hour for the plaster cast to dry before it is removed. And if the twigs and wood reinforcing wasn't used, the cast would probably crumble apart.

Law enforcement officers here don't find it necessary to make such casts every day. But when it will help them in their work, they know how. Deputy Willis told us about a case recently where such a cast helped solve a break-in.

The youth who confessed is only 16 years old. He had never been in trouble before and was placed on probation. But the cast of his footprint made by the deputy convinced the boy that he was trapped.

The cast showed the shoe had a patch on one side and a piece nicked out of the heel. It tallied perfectly with a print made by the shoe the boy was wearing. So he returned a few dollars that he had taken and probably will not become a second offender.

Aviation—on the Ground

Harold Cobb, manager of the Marion Flying Service, has a protege who's conducting a novel experiment. The experimenter is a young business man who was bitten by the aviation bug.

He is enrolled in the beginners class at the airport and since taking his first ground lesson has begun construction of a model airplane. It's the kind that is made from the usual kits sold at the retail stores.

Just building the plane, he says, will give him a good foundation for ground lessons. It will help him know about the parts of a ship. The wing and tail mechanisms, which are used to guide or steer, will actually operate just like a big ship.

But there's another and more important part to his plans. After the model is finished he's going to make a wind tunnel. That is a device in which ships are tested without taking them into the air. Gigantic blasts of air are forced through tunnels and for the purpose of testing it's the same as being high above the earth.

Of course, the experimenter's wind tunnel will be on the same small scale as the model plane. But he has an idea that he can arrange controls extending through the tunnel part. Then he can operate the model, suspended in the air within the tunnel, from the outside.

It will be much the same as flying a big ship, he says. One can learn the operating principles without even getting close to an airport, if his hopes are realized. Finishing touches to his project will be a glass enclosure over a section of the tunnel. In that way he can watch what happens while operating the plane.

How to furnish sufficient air with great enough force inside the tunnel isn't a big problem. He thinks any ordinary house fan will do the work. If that won't maybe a pair of them or even those built for commercial purposes will do the trick.

'The Law' Is Theft Victim

If Marion's state highway patrolmen seem to be taking a second glance at your car when they pass you on the road these days, the chances are that they're just looking for a pair of fog lights someone stole from a patrol cruiser a few weeks ago.

The story was slow in coming to light because the patrolmen didn't even report the incident to the city police, let alone mention it to a reporter. Apparently they realized they'd be roasted. But one of the officers broke down and let us in on the secret the other night when we noticed him examining fog lights on several cars parked on West Center street.

Campaign Cards

Cards used by candidates for election 32 years ago were very much the same as those being handed out today. John H. Clark, attorney, showed us one that old the other day. He had it printed when he was seeking re-election to the office of county prosecuting attorney. It was a little discolored by age but otherwise looked like it might have been printed for use in the coming primaries. Mr. Clark happened to come across it when he was rummaging through things in an old desk at his home. Incidentally, it bore his picture which shows that he hasn't changed much in that long period. Except that now his hair is completely white.

Blindfold Test

Are you one of those persons who always insist on smoking the same brand of cigarets? We knew a man once who, even if he happened to be out of his favorite kind, wouldn't use any other. So he became the subject of the blindfold test.

He stumbled into the test as a matter of circumstance. Being offered a smoke from a package that bore the name of his favorite, he accepted. But later, after apparently enjoying the cigaret, he learned that it wasn't really his kind, but another that had been slipped into the package.

He still insisted that he could tell the difference. Interested listeners suggested the blindfold test and he felt he was defending his honor by accepting the challenge.

He smoked each of four leading brands. Each cigaret was lighted before he touched them so the taste wouldn't be altered by the match. And between each he was permitted to take a drink of black coffee.

Climax to the test came at the finish when the smoker discovered that he hadn't been able to name any of the four cigarets correctly.

30 PER CENT INCREASE SHOWN IN SALES TAX

Marion County Ahead of State Average for Week.

Sales tax receipts in Marion county during the week ended April 6 amounted to $8,231.71, an increase of 30 per cent over the $4,790.18 for the corresponding week last year, a report from State Treasurer Don H. Ebright shows. This brought collections in the county since Jan. 1 to $69,-324.98 which was a gain of 11.4 per cent over the $62,219.52 for the similar period of 1939.

In the state as a whole, receipts for the week ended April 6 totalled $986,205.78 which was an increase of 19.2 per cent over the $287,-613.25 for the corresponding week in 1939. BOARD WILL OPEN STEEL CLAIM OFFICE

NLRB To Aid in Republic Reinstatements.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 23 — The national labor relations board announced today it would open offices Monday in several Ohio cities to receive back pay and reinstatement claims from Republic Steel Corp. strikers of 1937.

Oscar S. Smith, regional director, estimated 9,000 persons eligible to fill out such claims and said no computation of back pay would be made during preliminary checking stages because individual cases present "so many variables that an overall estimate is impossible."

The board has called upon its division of economic research to determine wages due strikers under the recent supreme court decision upholding a NLRB reinstatement order.

The division also must ascertain whether some strikers gained "substantially equivalent employment" elsewhere, in which case they will have no claim. The Republic case, Smith said, "offers by far the largest problem of this kind ever presented to the division."

Some estimates of the back pay have ranged as high as $7,500,000, but Republic insists the amount will be just a fraction of that figure. Republic explained it has followed the policy of reinstating strikers as soon as work becomes available.

"The board's order requires the company to reinstate with back pay 26 workers specifically named in the decision and about 3,600 workers who were locked out for a period of two weeks during the strike," Smith said, adding:

"The general requirement to reinstate with back pay some 5,000 workers who went out on strike, found by the circuit court to have been caused by unfair labor practices, provides workers will receive back pay from December, 1938, until the times of their individual reinstatements."

To be eligible to file a claim, worker must have been locked out at the Canton tin plate mill or the Massillon works in May, 1937, or must have gone out on strike against Republic on May 26, 1937, or later at any of its plants in the Canton, Cleveland, Youngstown, Warren, Niles and Massillon districts, Smith said.

Another Tailspin

PERHAPS the Roosevelt administration keeps getting into jams with the aviation industry for the same reason mice get into mousetraps Perhaps it doesn't see the danger in time

In any event a lot of congressmen the Air Line Pilots association and a lot of Americans who take more than passing interest in aviation are up in arms The slip stream of their wrath is the gustiest thing to come out of aviation since the administration told the army to fly the mail

As everybody knows the commercial aviation industry has just completed 12 months of operation without a fatality A relatively few persons know the industry ascribes this record largely to the air safety board and the air authority which took over civil air regulation and accident investigation from the department of commerce under the civil aeronautics act of 1938

Yet in President Roosevelt's fourth reorganization plan it is blandly proposed that control of civil aeronautics be returned to the department of commerce The department does not have the confidence of the persons most concerned apparently They are in favor of the new setup and the record sustains their judgment As they see it it is only plain common sense to want to preserve what has worked—to avoid what didn't work To the extent that they succeed in getting their case before the country they'll find agreement on that score

Worldwide Revolution

POLITICAL revolution whatever it may accomplish in the long run invariably brings about a general collapse of security When security has been reestablished the revolution is over

One of the dreams of civilized men has been to find a way to permit change in government without revolution That is the ideal behind all constitutional government—to create flexibility and eliminate violence

The dream has been widened to include international government but with few exceptions never has been fulfilled Nevertheless it continues to be possible that some day violence may be eliminated from international affairs just as it has been eliminated from the national affairs of countries capable of constitutional self government There aren't many

Events of the last few years have made fulfillment of the dream seem hopelessly remote the collapse of international security continues In many nations contributing to the collapse furthermore national security also has disappeared In a large area of the world there exist no rights among men or nations which command respect

It is taken for granted that seizures and oppressions will be continued at the expense of all minorities and governments unable to resist them Civilization has been set back hundreds of years to the stage where a highwayman was not an outcast but a member of an occupational group To the extent that the degeneration has robbed the greater part of the earth's population of security there has been created a worldwide revolution

Nazi Moon

BUCK UP boys says Rudolph Hess to the little German lads some of you may get into this war—and all of you will have a chance to roam explore and fight in the colonies we're going to win

Because Herr Hess is a have prospect for power being No 3 in the Nazi hierarchy this mention of colonies must be taken semi seriously It's the first time the subject has been brought up recently

There are some very nice colonies available right now for governments with time and money to accept the obligation The United States has grown tired of the Philippines Italy isn't exactly delirious with joy over Ethiopia Midagascar at last reports was something France could take or leave

These are just samples the idea being to suggest that colonies aren't always what they're cracked up to be When Germany had colonies moreover it did next to nothing with them except admire them on the map But if that's what the Nazis think they want—if colonies would make them quit reaching for the moon—the nations have enough slightly used ones to make up a whole colonial empire It would be a good exchange

News Behind the News

Russia Reported Fading as World Threat in Eyes of United States Diplomats

By PAUL MALLON

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON April 23—Russia has been scratched from the list of primary world threats by topmost United States diplomats

Their grapevine telegraph reports the Finnish campaign has taken the manganese out of Stalin The man of steel is now past 61 and those who have seen him lately have noted that from his most recent acts it is likewise noticeable that has vel known dreams of further expansion have been abandoned after the miserable failure of his army

Paul Mallon

Before the Finnish campaign for instance he was talking tough with Persia and concentrating troops on the Persian border Now he has negotiated a trade agreement

At the end of the Finnish campaign it was rather well known in world diplomatic matters that he intended to continue swiftly on through Finland to the northern Norwegian coast stopping at some point north of Narvik where he expected to run up to the northward German expanding sphere of influence The Russian plan also called as has been more widely advertised for expansion in the Balkans and near east to reclaim Bessarabia and the Dardanelles and to open an outlet to the Indian ocean through Persia That was when Stalin thought he had peace army

Now it is considered doubtful whether he will even attempt to claim Bessarabia unless Hitler first crushes any prospect of Rumanian resistance

Softening Toward Britain

Softening of Hitler's co conspirator is evident again in the move to get a trade pact with Great Britain Hatred of the British was a cardinal Stalin principle until a few weeks ago The automatic Soviet press had been daily hadling abuse upon the British Then something happened The British threatened a blockade against Russia in the Pacific Since then rapprochement has been more or less openly discussed by the Soviet ambassador in London and by the Red Press

What brought them down to British earth is the fact that they have about $10 000 000 worth of goods in the United States which they are very anxious to have They cannot get these supplies mostly machine tools because ship owners are afraid to risk the passage to Vladivostok in the face of the threatened British seizure

Not Being Fooled

The British are not being fooled by the situation in our folks are accurately informed The British know the Reds want to soften them up to the point of relaxing the Pacific blockade but not of course to the degree of reestablishing friendly or anti German relations

No stock is taken here in the stories now going around that Stalin has split with Hitler or that Hitler has suddenly discovered he cannot get what he wants from Russia and therefore is ready to drop the Moscow end of the axis Der well informed fuehrer was accurately informed in advance of just how little he could expect from the inefficient Reds and just how long it would take him to get anything at all

Internal Russian economic disorganization due to the Finnish war apparently has delayed Russian acquisitions somewhat but not to the extent of causing him to abandon the deal

Thus you may expect Lord Halifax to deal slowly and craftily in his promised exploration of the possibilities of a trade treaty

Pan American Week

The Latin-American good neighbor policy has proved to be a great social success during Pan American week but there are still some doubts about its commercial accomplishments

Friendliest personal contacts have now been established between North and South American nations but tangible results are lacking and prospects are diminishing

The European war has cost South America its best trade This has resulted in a further shortage of foreign exchange with which to pay for exports from the United States

American business men who took to good neighboring eagerly because they expected the export Import bank to finance the sales freely have lost some of their enthusiasm They find credits restricted by the ability to pay Furthermore this country is entering a political campaign in which it will be impossible for statesmen to permit extensive imports of South American products which compete with American agriculture

Thus within recent months the trade negotiation between Argentina and Uruguay have been abandoned and the dickering with Chile has failed to reach a negotiation stage because the Chilean earthquake has caused that government to concern itself entirely with rehabilitation

Two young government officials started a plan to have South American imports extensively exhibited at the World's Fair but the Latins dropped the suggestion when they learned the probable cost

Air Power vs. Sea Power

Argument Goes on As Signs of "Showdown" Appear

By DEVON FRANCIS
(Associated Press Aviation Editor)

DAYTON O April 23—While the academic debate over air power vs sea power goes on lightly qualified by smallscale bombing raids in Scandinavian waters new light is thrown on the gigantic preparations which Germany has made for a showdown with Great Britain

When where and if it will occur are questions made to order for worldwide conjecture

The confidence which Germany reposes in its air power in the event of a showdown would appear fantastic were it not for the record of the Polish campaign last September

With typical thoroughness Germany has plumbed numerous possibilities for the use of its air force The experimental flying of mines by German fliers in the Thames river estuary last November was only another indication of it

High Mark Set

It has become well established that Germany's ultimate goal in warplane production is some 72 000 machines a year That many would permit the application of a theory that a certain percentage of machines can be considered expendable in a mass assault on an objective just as ground commands expect the loss of a certain amount of men and equipment in storming a position

A hundred bombers swooping down in waves of five or ten machines upon a battleship and dropping their projectiles at so low an altitude as to make a miss an accident could in a period of 10 minutes deliver a total blow of 50 tons of explosive

The champions of air power contend that no battleship could withstand that Certainly the German version of air attacks on British cruisers and destroyers in recent days—modified considerably by the British version—is no solace to the Allies

Unquestionably bombing planes attacking battle hips would suffer considerable losses and many men in those units reason that the damage which bombs even in quantity can inflict on a modern battleship would be far from critical

They insist that bombs dropped from low altitude for maximum accuracy could be given neither fuse elect no direction to pierce deck armor plate

Stage Set

The German Siegfried line advocates opens wide the door to a decision between the two arms. The might of air power in a land campaign was demonstrated convincingly by the Germans in Poland and to a lesser extent by the Russians in Finland

Now, with air bases next door to the sea blockade which England is attempting to maintain to bring about Germany's economic downfall it may well be that the German fuehrer will seek a final decision

Since the start of the war three courses have been open to the German air force to use planes in assisting artillery and infantry to smash the Maginot line to send them against the British fleet and naval bases or to bomb England's industrial cities in an effort to break civilian morale

Of the three the second would seem to be the least costly and to carry the greatest chance of success

One big factor which may prevent a decision is the chance of failure Americam naval experts are quoted in Washington as being frankly skeptical of what air power can do against sea power

German warplanes held in leash and used sparingly as they have been used against the Allies for almost eight months remain a terrible moral threat to the enemy and anxious neutrals alike German warplanes which struck and failed to accomplish their purpose would be an equally terrible liability to the nation which wing markings they bear

Bird Tale

By The Associated Press

PUEBLO Colo—A pair of bluebirds made their home in a garden bird house When the babies were born the man who owned the garden took one of them into the house and placed it in a cage It died on a diet of bird seed

So the man took the age placed it in the tree and confined another young bird in it The father and mother birds fed the little one through the bars

Days later there was a clatter in the early morning and the man awoke to find that the parent bluebirds had opened the cage door and released their baby That was a year ago

All went well after the baby bird was released And this year the bluebird family is back in the same house

Knockout Blow Having Failed, Hitler Now Believed Hoping To Outlast Allies.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE are a number of signs no more perhaps than straws in the wind which indicate that Hitler is once more making ready to change his strategical conception of the war Ever since October when he realized that the Allies meant business he has hesitated between two ideas the one that he must and can knock out the Allies—the second that he must and can outlast them The knockout theory calls for an attack by sea by air and by land upon the Franco British control of the seas which if successful would bring Italy Spain Japan and Russia into the war before the United States could even if it wished do anything about it The other theory that of outlasting the Allies and of luring them out was based originally on the idea that the blockade could be defeated by drawing upon Russian supplies plus what could be obtained from and through Scandinavia the Balkans and Italy

Walter Lippmann

Because it became evident in the early winter that Russia could not and probably would not furnish the necessary supplies because it became clear that the Allied blockade was becoming much stricter Hitler had no choice but to start fighting No one was sure as to where he would strike But it was certain that he had to strike somewhere He struck at Denmark and Norway and at once it was generally supposed that this was the beginning of the great offensive to knock out Great Britain When Herr Von Ribbentrop went to Rome in March he announced that in a few weeks the campaign would be launched and that Germany would dictate peace to the Allies before the end of the summer The German propaganda throughout the world adopted this theme Mussolini caused the Italian press to report the war so as to give the Italian people the impression that the Nazis were on their way to delivering quickly the knockout blow Many neutral observers impressed by the ruthless efficiency of the Scandinavian invasion have adopted the view that Hitler attacked Norway primarily in order to obtain a jumping off place for an overwhelming air and submarine attack upon Great Britain There are I submit signs which should cause observers to re examine these notions

Two Objectives

Very recent developments suggest that here as in all of Hitler's operations there is not one single objective but two a maximum if all goes well with him and as an alternative a minimum if all does not go so well If all had gone well and he had obtained quickly at almost no cost the secure possession of the Norwegian coast the operation would have been a terrific blow to the Allied prestige and a great strategic and economic victory for Germany In the ensuing demoralization all further neutral resistance in Europe might have collapsed and the non belligerents Italy Japan and Russia might well have decided that the fateful hour had come when they must for their own safety participate in a German victory There seems to have been some such panic both in Tokio and in Rome during the first few days after the Norwegian stroke

But it is now clear that Hitler's stroke in Scandinavia is a partial but by no means a complete success He is not to have Norway without fighting for it He has suffered irreparable losses in his navy a circumstance which is bound to impress the Italian and Japanese navies The British navy, which on the theory of the knockout blow was to be sunk in Scapa Flow because Norway is so near has actually gone over to Norway still nearer to the German air force and is landing an army in Norway

It may not be a mere accident that there has been a rather sudden change in the diplomatic

Mine Bluffing

Naval Experts Point Out Interesting Facts About Mines After Scandinavian Offensive

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON April 23—When the memoirs of this age are written our navy experts will scour them for an answer to the question Why on earth didn't the Germans mine the Skagge rak and the Kattegat?

When news came that ships of the British navy were passing through the gray mists of the Skaggerak many men here goggled When NO word came that a single British boat had been blasted to the bottom by a mine the navy boys couldn't believe their ears and eyes.

Jack Stinnett

With the report that the British not only had crossed the three old (Scandinavians call Skaggerak the see of) but had swung around The Shetland Island headed down that foreboding Baltic the Kattegat (the ca's throat) the experts were dumbfounded The Nazis not only had left the door wide open but hadn even bothered to sprinkle tacks on the floo

Looked Like A Set Up

What on earth had the Germans been up to? They must have known for weeks, many months that they were going to try for the Scandinavian coup With Denmark as a springboard they could have poured troops endlessly across the narrow elbow into Norway and Sweden It's hardly more than a ferry boat ride and between ribbons of mines through which the British navy could not put it would have been as safe a ride as from New York Battery to Bedloe island

The astonishment of the folks in the Navy building at this one more cockeyed fact in the most cockeyed war in history sent me to the record There is no real answer there but there is an interesting phase of this mining business which a study of World war reports and memoirs ought out

That is that the business of laying mine fields is about 10 per cent mines 90 per cent bluff

Don't take this as an underestimate of the value of the mine menace But the underside garden is much more sparsely planted with the tulips of death than the warring nations would have each other believe

This bluff is part of the game The navy department has a collection of amazing maps Solid pink squares oblongs and triangles show announced mine areas Here said the Allies or the Germans, are mined seas. If you don't want your ship blown to smithereens keep out But on these self same maps is a smattering of pepper and salt—and these spots show the areas ACTUALLY mined That's what I mean by bluff per cent

Made Skippers Wary

For example the whole of the Baltic was supposed to be mined in the World war Actually there was a scattering of mines throughout the inland sea which could only have (according to the experts) nuisance value Some occasional destruction was enough to make captains wary of the whole area

The announced mine areas in the World war were of staggering proportions. From the western coast of France below the English channel to the northern entrance to the North Sea there was hardly an important channel that wasn't mined But many of these sections had only a scattering of death tulips

One section mined thoroughly was the 250 miles from Scotland to Norway where the United States and Great Britain in 1917 and 1918 laid 70 000 mines to make a Maginot line of the entrance to the North Sea This project was possible because the United States developed a new mine that could be laid at great depths and exploded at the slightest touch For three years the Germans had been cutting cables on Allied mines, emptying their deadly innards and cutting them in half for soup kettles and punch bowls The new mines ended that

Accent On Bluff

That greatest of all mining efforts taught warring powers a new technique but naval authorities today are agreed that it has not been duplicated in the present war And the consensus is that there is more bluff now than there was in the World war

There are some experts here who say that the Germans had good reason NOT to mine the Skaggerak and Kattegat. The Skaggerak is deep (well over 1 200 feet in some channels) and the Kattegat is narrow In both the currents are fierce Also it is said the Nazis wanted to leave their only channels to the outside world open Maybe these guessers are right But history will have to prove it to the naval people

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F DODDS

Daniel Webster who traveled in Ohio in 18 encouraged Edwin R Davis a Kenyon university student, to continue his study of archeology after attending a lecture by the young man

Davis often had explored the earthworks the moundbuilders strewn about the countryside near Hillsboro where he was born in 181 Despite his primary interest he abandoned archeology because it would not yield him livlihood turning instead to medicine

At 27 he was graduated in medicine and began practice at Chillicothe where he remained until 1850 He continued his archeology study meanwhile

At his own expense Davis explored more than 100 Ohio mounds assisted by E G Squier The Smithsonian Institution published their records thereby establishing both as authorities The work still is regarded as an erudite source work

Those Urbane Orientals

SHANGHAI—One of the many complexities—typically Oriental—arrangements resulting from Japan's undeclared war on China is exemplified in the administration and management of this country's great network of postal communications.

The entire postal system including all offices in the wide slices of territory occupied by Japanese military forces, is still controlled and operated by the Chungking government.

When a Japanese soldier buys a stamp for a letter to a buddy elsewhere in China his few cents go into the treasury of the Chinese government China reciprocates by transporting the letter and a Chinese postman delivers it to its destination

Since the postal service has not shown a profit since 1933 it costs Chungking a large sum annually to keep the mails running for the raiders. On the other hand the Chinese government income from mails carried by Japanese army planes and ships.

The Japanese have grabbed almost all private businesses in occupied China but beyond installing their own censors have kept hands off the postal organization

This is mainly due to the fact that under international postal agreements only China's stamps can be used on mail originating in China

been a great thrill to her. "I am glad to be here with the soldiers," she commented, recalling that her ancestors had been Revolutionary soldiers, and also had fought in the War of 1812, and that her father had been a Civil War veteran. In looking over the audience she named a number of men and women who had been her pupils at some time during her teaching career. In voicing her thanks for the honor conferred on her, she expressed the hope "that I can continue to fulfill all the things said about me tonight."

To Receive Medal

The recognition will carry with it a medal bearing an appropriate inscription, a gift from the National Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The medal, which did not arrive for last night's program, will be presented to Miss Cunningham upon its arrival.

Miss Cunningham began teaching in the city schools in 1885 at the old Central building in the third grade. In 1887 she was principal at the North State Street school where she remained until her transfer to Greenwood where from 1892 to 1894 she taught the seventh grade and from 1894 to 1897 she served as principal and teacher of the eighth grade. From 1898 until her retirement in 1934 she was a member of the High school faculty, teaching history, physical geography, civics and literature.

She has been a member of the executive board of the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross since January 1935 and has served as recording secretary since 1936. Her services with the board of trustees of the City library began in 1916. She served as president of the board in 1924-25, and is at present the secretary-treasurer, a position she also held several years ago.

Active In D.A.R.

A member of Captain William Hendricks chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Miss Cunningham served as regent in 1928-30 and is at present a member of the board of management. Her interest in citizenship takes her to the courthouse whenever a group of men and women are to become naturalized United States citizens and on many occasions she has presented them with American flags. She is affiliated with the Literature Study club and this year is serving as the legislative chairman. As historian of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs she is working on a complete history of the federation and the individual clubs.

The Americanism program was preceded by the ritualistic opening of the auxiliary with the newly-installed officers headed by Mrs. Lydia Ralston, president, presiding. Lieut. Carl Euert was a guest speaker, and there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. Mrs. Mildred Pickeral, Americanism chairman, presided for the program, and the color bearers acted as an escort for the guests of honor.

Members of the Silvertone quartet composed of Mrs. W. G. Snyder, Mrs. W. F. Parr, Mrs. L. E. Timm and Mrs. D. R. Carpenter sang three numbers, and Miss Mary Barkley played two accordion selections. Miss Jane Ruth sang a solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Delsia Baker, who also played for the singing of "America" and "Star Spangled Banner," by the audience.

Carl Euert spoke on the theme of Americanism which he defined as the perpetuating of American principles carved out by the first private citizens of the country and developed through the hard work of our forefathers. He discussed the world changes in the world today, particularly in the warring countries of Europe, and said it was the duty of American citizens to keep thinking of the future. "Our schools and we as citizens have a big job in maintaining good citizenship," he said.

500 See Anglers Vie for Honors in Bait and Fly Casting Tourney

Before a crowd of more than 500 fans lining the banks of McKinley lake, Charles Baker of 282 Silver street and Ray Richmond of 321 South Grand avenue yesterday afternoon and evening cast their way to major victories in the Marion Lions club's first annual casting tournament.

Baker, a junior at Harding High school, finished first in both events for boys while Richmond won firsts in three of the four events for men.

A favorite of the spectators from the very beginning of the competition, Baker scored 79 out of a possible 100 in bait casting for accuracy in the boys' division —the highest accuracy score of the meet. The score was one point higher than a 78 turned in by Lloyd Ledley of 225 Orchard street who won first prize in the bait casting for accuracy event for men.

Robert Askew Second

Second to Baker in the accuracy event was Robert Askew of 294 Spencer street with 55.

The fans appreciated Baker's sportsmanship, too, when at the end of the boys' bait casting for distance event, which he won with a cast of 130 feet, he relinquished the prize offered for first place to John Rayner of South Prospect street who had finished second with a cast of 105 feet.

In the accuracy competition, which came first on the program, Baker had won a tackle box. A similar prize was offered in the distance competition so when the results were announced Baker asked the judges to give the first place award to Rayner and to give him the smaller prize offered for second place.

In the men's event for bait casting for accuracy, Ledley's winning score of 78 was closely followed by a 77-score by A. M. Young of 551 Pearl street and Richmond's 76. Ledley was the only left-handed caster in the tournament.

In the distance bait casting competition for men, Richmond won first with a cast of 142 feet and Ledley finished second with 125 feet. Richmond scored 71 for first place in the fly-casting event, Young tallied 69 and A. T. Allen 65.

54-Foot Fly Cast

Richmond won the distance event in fly casting with 54 feet, while Allen and Young tied for second. But in the play-off, both of the runners-up cast farther than the winner, Young winning second place with a cast of 60 feet and Allen finishing third with a 57-foot cast. However, the first place winner had been determined before Allen and Young cast the second time so that Richmond received the first-place award.

No fly casting events were held in the boys' division. Other scores in the tournament were:

Boys' accuracy: John Rayner, 51; Ronald Arndt, 22; Robert Slatter, 22; Dave Fletcher, 22; and James Jameson, 14.

Boys' distance: Robert Askew, 80 feet; James Jameson, 75 feet.

Men's bait accuracy: Ed Wylie, 55; W. T. Jamison, 66; Vernon Street, 76; H. Askew, 55; Harold Mush, 37; Robert Bush, 67; Arnold Swartz, 22; G. Lilley, 50; Richard Wright, 45; R. Selanders, 50.

Men's bait distance: W. T. Jameson, 102 feet; A. M. Young, 93 feet; Vernon Street, 94 feet; Arnold Swartz, 101 feet; G. Lilley, 80 feet; Richard Wright, 111 feet; R. Selanders, 105 feet.

Men's fly accuracy: W. T. Jameson, 35.

Men's fly distance: W. T. Jameson, 46 feet.

Prizes for the competition were donated by nine hardware stores and sporting equipment dealers and included tackle boxes, fly rods, bait casting rods, minnow buckets, lines, reels and baits. The awards were presented to the winners by Edward Ruzzo, president of the Lions club.

Prizes for Biggest Bass

It was announced at the tournament that the Lion's club trophy for the largest bass caught in Marion county waters during 1940 will be presented at the close of the fishing season in November. The trophy is now on display at Carrol's jewelry store. Entries in the contest must be "weighed in" at Turner's hardware store.

Because of the interest shown by participants and spectators, tentative plans were made at the event for organizing a casting team in Marion as a part of a statewide organization which holds regular meets throughout the fishing season. Details of the organization are being worked out by Arnold Swartz.

Arrangements for the tournament, which the Lions club plans to repeat annually as one of their major propects, were in charge of a group of club members. Cecil Gabler served as director and was assisted by Robert Bush. Judges were Joe Roby, Gene Auld and William Williams, while Bob Hicks and Bob Cunningham served as clerks. The prize committee was composed of Jack Danner, chairman, Thayer Martin, Dr. J. W. Bull, Dr. R. E. Eicher and Herbert Petrich. The properties committee included Robert Bush, chairman, Kenneth Bolinger, Robert Cunningham, and G. L. Pierson.

The boat used in placing targets for the accuracy events was furnished by Walter Horn.

WOMAN FINED $100 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Pleads Guilty to Possession After Arrest by Agents.

Mrs. Kathryn Wilson, 50, of 596 East Mark street was fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge Hazen yesterday afternoon when she pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession and sale of liquor.

She was committed to the county jail when she told court officials she was unable to pay the fine.

Mrs. Wilson was arrested at her home Sunday night by two state agents and two city policemen. The state agents who filed the charge said they purchased beer and whisky from Mrs. Wilson a short time before the arrest.

and found him "netting" glass. Young Beam was fascinated with the art which belongs to the fine glass workers of France, Germany and Czechoslovakia and is nothing like the glass blowing industry of this country.

The old Frenchman took an interest in Beam and taught him the process of netting glass. When he was 12 years old, Beam moved with his parents to Dayton and it was there that he set up a little workshop and made some of the products for his mentor who had a market for them. Beam's mother encouraged him and had a gas jet set up so he could mold the glass rods into candlesticks and other items.

Beam lived in Dayton until he was a high school sophomore. Then he moved with his family west of Galion where he was graduated at 17 from the Whetstone township consolidated high school.

At this time he was out of school and looking for work. He owned a violin which he sold for $4 to go to Dayton for a job in a Dayton dress factory. Here he worked for a year, returning to Galion to manage a tire shop and to marry Donnabelle Carmel of Galion. Then he operated a tire shop in Mansfield, and came back to Galion to be proprietor of the gasoline station where business was not so flourishing and where Frederick Thaler found him.

Father of Two Children

The Beams have a daughter and a nine-month-old son, Ronald.

His parents now live west of Galion at Sugar Grove Lake, and his father is a salesman in an electrical appliance store in Galion. He has a sister and two brothers, all younger than himself.

The industry which has grown from Beam's hobby is housed in a two-story building on Harding Way West. There are 19 people employed including 16 apprentices. Beam says that one out of five or ten boys learning the art will stick at it. They work from 7 a. m. until 4 p. m., learning the trade and producing some of the products for the market. The work is tedious and all over the building radios have been installed to relieve the workers of the tension. In learning, the apprentices waste each month about $200 worth of glass.

Beam says there is no limit to his field of work. He is constantly adding items to the original line of crystal candlesticks, baskets and ships. The products sell from 35 cents to $75.

He is studying anatomy so that he can make human figures out of the molten glass.

His work has been acclaimed by some of the customers as superior in quality and design to any of the imports.

PENNSYLVANIA VOTES IN PRIMARIES TODAY

Two Roosevelt Factions Battle for Party Control.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, April 23 — Two years of fighting for control of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania reached a climax today as voters turned out to decide a noisy, free swinging campaign battle on the Democratic side and a contrastingly serene Republican contest.

Democratic party rule hinged on U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey's fight for renomination against his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man who was backed by a group of party leaders headed by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence.

A third man in the race was fiddle-playing William N. McNair, former Pittsburgh mayor and outspoken anti-new dealer.

Guffey, the state's 64-year-old junior senator, broke with Lawrence in the bitter 1938 primary, campaigning vigorously on a "100 per cent" new deal record, charging Lawrence was responsible for the party rift.

Jones, 56, also bid for votes as a Roosevelt supporter, but left most of his public campaign work to his backers.

On the Republican side, party leaders were united behind the senatorial candidacy of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia banker. His opponents were Albert H. Ladner Jr., of Philadelphia and John A. De Benzo, Altoona, Pa., publisher.

Turkey guarded the Dardanelles (3) and part of the fleet maneuvered in the Sea of Marmora near Gallipoli. Allied naval units maneuvered off the Greek coast (4). Russia mined the Black Sea off Odessa (5). Rumania dispatched additional troops to Bessarabia (6), but agreed with Russia to withdraw troops six miles from the frontier.

This district governor of the Essen area, who also holds the title of state councillor, is only 42 years old. Apparently his functions are to be somewhat similar to those of Governor-General Hans Frank in the German-occupied but unannexed portion of Poland.

Duff-Cooper, speaking before the Royal Society of St. George in place of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, said German attacks upon Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark and Norway were "crimes of the whole people."

Duff-Cooper said it was "wishful thinking to believe we can drive a wedge between the German government and the German people."

Mayor Says Street Work Plan Rejected

where we were." The mayor said it does put the plan back, but that the city still can ask for the money for direct relief.

Councilman W. P. Cass Jr. commented that it might be a good idea to create a "county of the city of Marion," which would mean a secession from the county. He estimated the city produces about three-fifths of the taxes in the county as a whole.

Urges City Representation

Another councilman criticized the setup of the county commissioners, who are usually dominantly rural. He said the proper proportion on the board would be two men from the city and one from the county. The situation now is the reverse of that.

Councilman M. Basil Williams ventured the opinion that if the residents of the city exerted the same pressure on the commissioners as the rural people do perhaps the city might get somewhere.

"But the people of Marion apparently don't live in Marion county," Mr. Cass declared.

Councilman Biggert brought up the question of the WPA traffic survey which was completed some time ago. He recalled the city had put $800 or so into it and wondered if anything was going to be done. The mayor said that if council had digested the report thoroughly he would be glad to arrange a conference with community leaders, who have also gone through the report, and seek to work out some of the recommendations.

There was also brief discussion of Mr. Biggert's remarks on taxing gambling and other things at Thursday night's council meeting. Mr. Biggert had suggested such taxation as an alternative to passage of the relief levy at the May primaries.

Several councilmen said they had received "kick backs" on the suggestion.

Report on Crossing

In the regular council meeting, the police committee reported, after an investigation of a request for a flasher signal at the Erie railroad crossing on Bennett street, that the railroad apparently has been negligent. The committee said that when the watchman was removed at the crossing some time ago, the railroad promised that a flagman would be on duty whenever a train approached, but that this has not been done. The city solicitor was directed to contact the railroad in the matter.

The committee also recommended that Wilson avenue be made a through street. The recommendation was given to the ordinance and franchise committee for drafting of legislation.

A resolution from the Marion Central Labor Union (A. F. of L.) asking council to extend the city limits a mile in all directions and to seek a reappraisal of all property in the city was read and referred to the ordinance and franchise and finance committees. The union had suggested these steps as a means of raising new revenue to meet the city's financial problems.

Complained About Ditch

Leon Reed, who lives at Barnhart street and Wilson avenue, complained of a ditch condition on Wilson avenue. He said the condition resulted from line-laying work done by the Marion Water Co. several months ago. Council President Robert H. Saul referred the complaint to the street and alley and waterworks committees for investigation.

Councilman George [illegible] changed a previous recommendation concerning on Durfee drive. He asked ing one light to the the street.

Councilman [illegible] reported on an proposed that of the City parking [illegible]

Councilman Hayse Rogers reported on an investigation of a request of the American Malleable Casting Co. for closing of an alley and parts of streets near its plant on West Center street. He said the committee advises granting the request, if the company will put an adequate and paved alley between its property and the Werley hotel. The alley should be large enough to permit access to fire trucks, Mr. Rogers said.

The matter was referred to the street and alley committee and ordinance and franchise committee for further study.

Urges Levy Support

Mayor Snare made brief remarks in support of the relief and fire department levies.

He announced that Fire Chief T. J. McFarland and his men are cooperating in inviting citizens to inspect the department and see for themselves just what equipment the city has to fight fires.

The mayor suggested that if any councilmen are contacted by citizens concerning the need for fire equipment the councilmen ask the citizens to visit the fire stations. The firemen will gladly give information concerning the equipment.

Water Main Ordinance

The water main ordinance passed by council provides for:

1. A six-inch main on Homer street for 180 feet south of the present main.

2. A two-inch line on Bradford street for 189 feet south of the present main.

3. Replacement of 405 feet of two-inch line on Duluth avenue from Windsor street to Cherry street.

The ordinance making Jefferson street a stop street is the result of a petition submitted by residents of the vicinity after an accident in which two persons were killed.

and Namsos, an equal distance to the north.

The main force of British troops working out on Namsos was reported to have reached Steinkjer, 30 miles from Trondheim. Strong British forces also were said to have pushed northward from Andalsnes to Steren, 25 miles below Trondheim.

Three British submarines, recently returned from North sea operations, were credited with having sunk nine or 10 German ships — including some carrying troops — totaling 35,000 to 45,000 tons.

In addition, an informed naval source said, eight Nazi ships totaling 52,105 tons are "believed to have sunk" at Narvik on April 9.

The British merchant losses during the past week were acknowledged—the Swainby, 4,933 tons; Mersey, 1,037 tons, and Hawnby, 5,380 tons.

As the Allies increased their pressure on the Germans in Norway, French military authorities in Paris said that the position of Sweden had become the "dark side" of the Scandinavian war situation and that "important events appeared imminent." It was suggested Germany might invade Sweden.

Cancels Talk

First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, from whom a first-hand report on events in Scandinavia had been expected, canceled a scheduled speech because of "the pressure of work."

Meanwhile the government issued a statement listing 24 German warship "casualties" since the start of the war, not counting a large number of submarines, and compared this with only 18 British warships sunk, including five submarines and an armed merchantman.

Britons also were told that their five new 35,000-ton battleships, which are to be put into action soon, would be the largest and most powerful in the world, and that they were undergoing tests.

Britain's fine new battleships were described in the most complete detail yet announced. Churchill on Feb. 27 had said that the 35,000-ton craft would join the fleet soon. They are the King George V, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Jellicoe and the Beatty.

"They are the largest battleships ever built in this country," one writer said, "and are exceeded size only by the Lion and the Temeraire and two others not yet named which still are under construction and will displace at least 40,000 tons."

The five new floating fortresses mount ten 14-inch guns in two quadruple turrets, and one twin turret, sixteen 5.25-inch guns and many lighter ones. Each ship will carry three aircraft and 1,500 officers and men. They will have a speed of 30 knots as compared with the 23 of the battleship Nelson, a 33,950-ton ship.

Completion of these ships will raise Britain's capital ship strength to 10 and leave at least four more building.

Losses Are Listed

The British summary stated that of 15 capital ships completed prior to the war only the battleship Royal Oak has been lost. The Courageous was said to be the only one of seven aircraft carriers lost.

Britain has lost no cruisers, her other losses being ten destroyers of a pre-war fleet of 185, the statement said.

As against the British claims of successes against German ships, Berlin said today that 14 British transports and war vessels had been sunk or damaged off Norway by Nazi bombers in the last 48 hours.

The Germans said on Sunday that since the Scandinavian war had started, Britain had lost five cruisers, ten destroyers and eight submarines sunk, one cruiser beached, and had suffered severe damage on four battleships, seven battle and heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and one airplane carrier.

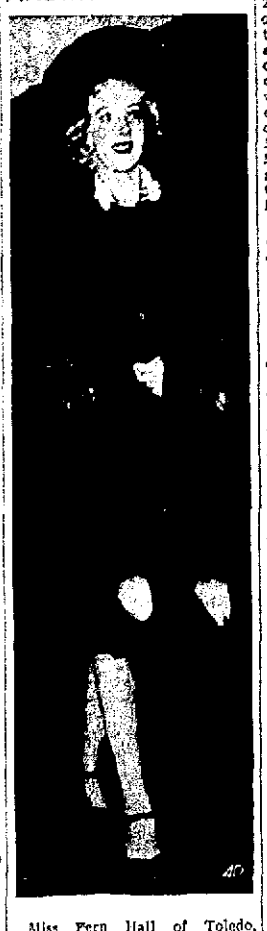
New Title Winner Known in Marion



Miss Fern Hall of Toledo, above, who recently won the title of "Miss Spiritual America" awarded at a Washington contest, is known to a number of Marion residents. She appeared as a guest singer on the Marion Civic orchestra program Dec. 19, 1935, at which time she gave a pleasing account of herself as a coloratura soprano. With her at that time were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hall, who also have friends here.

Miss Hall, who has been on tour since being named "Miss Spiritual America," is in Toledo at the present time and this week will go to Chicago and then head west for film work. She will have a part in the film "Wake Up America to Indecency."

The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who wed the American born Wallis Simpson and Edward VIII of England, now the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, officiated at the title awarding contest.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Spencer Proud as Lillian Reports Success of Mission.

DICKY did not relax his grip upon our elbows until we reached my father's armchair. The door was ajar, and Miss Whitlock, who evidently had been watching for arrival, swung it open for our entrance. Dicky swept us through, and ranged us in front of "the Chief" in the manner of a truant officer bringing two runaway boys before the school principal.

"Here they are, Dad," he said cheerily, "and from their general appearance, I judge they've eaten the canary, even to the tail feathers."

My father's eyes were eloquent with relief as he looked at me, but he spoke no word of any anxiety that he had felt.

"You have results, I take it," he said.

Lillian did not wait for me to answer.

Madge Is Extolled

"Madge is too modest," she said. "I'll have to chant this saga. She came to Miss Annie Carman, she saw her, she conquered her. We not only have found out that the region between the farm house and the bay has a number of secret tunnels, but Miss Carman gave us full maps and descriptions of the secret entrance to the attic here, and of tunnels outside. And it's all due to Madge's shrewdness. We never would have gotten a word out of her otherwise."

My father's eyes gleamed as he turned them on me, and their expression eased the fear I had felt that he might blame me for revealing to Miss Carman the secret behind the farm house siege.

"I have always known that I could trust my daughter's judgment in an emergency," he said. "Will you please show me the maps and other papers now?"

Chief Is Bested

But Miss Whitlock stepped inexorably forward, her attitude that of the professional nurse whose indulgence has been tried beyond limit.

"You should have had your dinner an hour ago," she said severely. "You promised me that I could bring it up as soon as your daughter returned."

"But these maps are of vital importance," he protested.

She smiled at him a bit mischievously.

"Will you give me your word of honor that it is vital you look at them before you have your dinner?" she asked.

I was surprised to hear him answer "No-o" with a rather sheepish air, although both Lillian and Dicky have commented upon the skill with which Nurse Whitlock has "put the fear of God into the Chief."

"Then I'll bring it up at once," she said briskly, "so that there will be the least possible delay for you. And, if I may make a suggestion"—she turned to us with an air that made her suggestion subtly a command—"I think you ought to go down and have your dinners now, and then you'll be ready when Mr. Graham is."

"That's a good idea," Dicky commented. "Come along, girls! I'm half starved."

"Didn't you have your dinner?" I inquired with concern.

Couldn't Have Eaten

"Without you, sweetie pie?" he countered flamboyantly. "couldn't have eaten a mouthful! Everybody else did, however, and I soothed Katie's ruffled feelings by telling her you were off on some 'de-lec-a-tuff sloof' for your father. She fairly gurgled her approval, and I imagine she's probably fried an extra chicken for you and Lil."

He had deftly ushered us into the hall as he spoke, and I realized that we were still holding the bundles of papers.

"I hope she's fried five," Lillian said extravagantly. "I could eat 'em all."

"What?" I began, indicating the papers in our hands and nodding toward the door, which Miss Whitlock had closed after us.

"Lock 'em up in the desk in my room," Lillian said promptly. "Excuse us a minute, Dicky. We'll wash up and be back with you in a minute."

"If it's more than 10," Dicky threatened, "I'll come after you with handcuffs."

"Rush yourself downstairs and tell Katie to put dinner on the table," I told him. "We'll be there by the time she serves the first course."

ON ANDY I'M SO WORRIED ABOUT BABY—SHE USED TO BE SO GAY—BUT NOW, SHE JUST SITS AND BROODS—I'M AFRAID SHE'LL GET SICK!
POOR KID—SEEMS LIKE THAT PHONY PRINCE BROKE HER HEART—
I'D LIKE TO GET MY HANDS ON THAT CRUDE CARICATURE OF A MAN—I'D TEACH HIM TO TRIFLE WITH THE AFFECTIONS OF AN INNOCENT CHILD—THE—THE HEARTLESS MONSTER!
NO MATTER HOW I TRY TO FORGET HER, THAT BEAUTIFUL FACE IS ALWAYS BEFORE ME—
